prompt response was given, some one coming on from there to look after their exposed townsfolk. When our authorities had audited all bills growing out of the sickness, there were found to be nearly six hundred dollars of expense. The question, then, of vital interest was, what part of this expense should be borne by each of the two towns. Both doubtless got good legal advice, and both wanted to settle matters without going to law. It is said, however, that court decisions made it clear that Williams-town must bear the expense of the sanitary precautions in general demanded by the situation. The main question in doubt was that of the residence, under the present law, of Rev. Mr. Robinson when he was taken sick.—Springfield, we believe, claiming that it would be this place. Finally, an amicable adjustment was reached by Springfield's assuming three hundred dollars of the entire expense,—a result upon which both towns are to be congratulated. It is due Springfield to say that her side of the affair is said to have been managed in a fair and manly way, and, of course, calculated to commend her to all concerned.

The State Fair.

The state fair held at Burlington last week was the most successful exhibition which has been held on the grounds since the union of the state society with that of the Champlain Valley Association. The weather, which is always an important factor in the success of fairs, was remarkably fine, and, under the skillful management of President Hooker, nothing seemed wanting to make the joint exhibition a success.

THE SHOW OF CATTLE

was smaller than at some former years, but this deficiency was made up in some respect by the superior merit of the animals shown. It is well known that the Billings herd of Jerseys at Woodstock is one of the best of the same breed at the Green Mountain stock farm at West Randolph are the finest herds of this class of cattle in this country, and lovers of all kinds of stock were highly pleased to see representatives of these two famous herds on the ground. All of the animals from these herds had aristocratic pedigrees and most excellent butter records to back them. Mr. Billings showed seven head and Mr. Moulton thirteen. These, with two or three exceptions, comprise the best of Jerseys. The Ayrshire exhibit was also confined to two leading herds, those of C. M. Winslow of Brandon and L. S. Drew of Burlington. Mr. Winslow's herd attracted much attention, and was the only one on account of its most excellent butter record, and the animals on exhibition were almost perfect types of this desirable breed of cattle. Dr. Drew's herd is remarkable for its general uniformity and apparent excellence of each animal. Mr. Winslow's herd of Guernseys from the herd of S. H. Weston of Winoski completed the list of animals of this breed, which competes with the Jerseys as a better breed. The Devons are a popular breed of cattle in this country, and New England on account of their hardiness, uniform color, butter qualities and general adaptability for "mixed" farming. The animals on exhibition were from the herds of Edward Hungerford of Burlington and Edwin House of Waterbury. The show of Holsteins was much the smallest that we have seen at the state fair for some years. Why this popular breed should have been largely represented, we do not know. The exhibitors—J. A. Sheild of Burlington, Peck & Post of Hinesburg, and H. E. Colley of Jonesville—comprised the entire list of thoroughbreds on the grounds. The beefy Herefords and Friesian Angus were shown by L. B. Harris of St. Albans. Mr. Harris has as fine types of thoroughbreds as can be found in New England. It is to be regretted that the tendency in the show of cattle is towards representatives of famous herds, to the exclusion of the more valuable herds of superior animals from all parts of the state. It is possible that the low price of cattle for several years may have its influence in this direction, but it hardly seems that this can be the entire cause for this change. If farmers could be induced to bring out their cattle as they do their horses, this feature of the fair would be of much greater value than at the present time. The show of working oxen has for some years been a special attraction of the fair. It has not been an exception. About thirty yoke were to be seen, and every pair a good one. The weights varied from 3,000 to 5,000 pounds per pair. The drawing-match drew a crowd and the oxen pulled for "all they were worth." The heaviest load drawn was 7,200 pounds on a stone boat.

THE HORSE SHOW

was the best that has been seen at a state fair. Our space forbids a detailed account of the many superior stock and driving horses on the grounds. The Morgans, with such leading representatives as Ben Franklin and Aristos, with their numerous progeny, will take the lead in the show for many years to come. Too much praise can not be given to the men who have stuck to the Morgans and kept them at the front on their merits alone. The horses drew the crowd. The races were interesting, and some of the horses were very fine. Between the races, stallions and horses of merit were shown and some of them were given a half mile to let the people see what they could do. E. F. Brownell of Burlington carried off a goodly number of premiums on standard-bred horses. There were several very fine pairs of driving horses on the grounds and the gentlemen's driving horses would be hard to beat anywhere. The brood mares, with colts by their side, showed that the interest in breeding road horses in Vermont is still on the increase. Visitors from other states said that Vermont horses could not be beaten even by Kentucky.

THE SHOW OF SHEEP

was never better. The Merinos are picking up, and sales of stock in the state have been unusually large for the past month, with fair prices, and the Merino pens were all full and every sheep shown was a good one. But the mutton breeds are pushing their way to the front, and the Merinos are far greater in numbers than the fine wools. The flocks of the two most noted Cotswold breeders in the state were well represented. Mr. Billings' herd of Downs was well represented, as were the flocks of A. W. & J. P. Wilcox of Bridport and L. B. Harris of St. Johnsbury.

THE SWINE EXHIBIT

was confined mostly to small Yorkshires by L. S. Drew of Burlington.

THE POULTRY DEPARTMENT

was well filled.

AGRICULTURAL HALL

was found to be too small for all that was to be seen in this line, and many exhibitors were gratified at the throngs of farmers who carefully examined the various machines and implements for farm work. The show of fruits and vegetables might have been better. The specimens of apples and potatoes showed that this is surely an "off year" for Vermont, but in home-grown seeds the exhibitors showed what can be done in this line, but the exhibit was a meager one in comparison with the extent of the maple sugar industry in the state. It might be well for the maple sugar exchange to look into this matter and in the future see that a much larger show is made in this line.

FLORAL AND MECHANICAL HALL

was well filled with dairy implements, stoves, ranges and wares of various kinds. The ladies' department was not neglected and the handiwork of the fair sex was greatly admired by the crowds which thronged the hall.

Taken all in all, the fair was a grand success both as a show and in the number who were present to see it.

THERE was great excitement at Norwich last week over the finding of human bones, evidently those of a man, in a sandy soil, between the farms of Lorenzo Kinney and Austin Stevens, the skeleton being turned to light by workmen who were operating a road machine. Dr. Annabell examined the bones and gave the opinion that they could not have lain more than twenty years. The mystery associated with this discovery has revived recollections of the sudden disappearance, nineteen years ago, of one John Bartlett, seventy-two years of age. He was a man of wealth and regarded as somewhat miserly and eccentric. At the time of his disappearance it was commonly believed he had been foully dealt with, as during the night following the last time he was seen alive, horrible screams were heard issuing from the direction of his house. Lying with him was a man and wife, who, when questioned, would only say that Bartlett had gone to live with the Shakers. The latter were visited, but no trace could be found of the missing man. For some reason, although there are alleged to have been many circumstances indicating murder, the town authorities never pushed the matter.

Remarks.

CORN.—Fair demand and receipts pretty free.

OATS.—A quiet market. Old oats will sell a little higher than quotations.

BEANS.—Receipts much smaller. Pea beans are steady, but yellow-eyes are dull and dragging.

CHEESE.—There has been no noteworthy change, but there is a steady demand for the better grades.

WHEAT.—The market is quiet, as people are looking for lower prices. As the crops are bountiful and good, there is no reason why prices should not go lower.

Eggs.—The condition is somewhat improved, and prices have stiffened up a little. There has been a good demand for fresh stock. Receipts have been moderate.

BUTTER.—No improvement in the market. Medium and low grades are overstocked and of dragging sale. The inquiry for trunk butter has fallen off and the market is overstocked.

Wool.—The condition of the market shows an improvement. There is more disposition to purchase and there is more confidence. Buyers and sellers are still somewhat apart in their views, but are gradually nearing each other. Manufacturers are taking advantage of the present low prices to stock up before the expected rise. Altogether, the situation is a more cheerful one.

STARTLING EVIDENCE

Of the Cure of Skin Diseases when all other Methods Fail.

Psoriasis five years, covering face, head and entire body with white scales. Skin red, itchy and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by CUTICURA Remedies.

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head and shoulders being the worst. The white scales fell constantly from my head, shoulders and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA Remedies, and after using two bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and one box of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured it without any scars. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel that I owe my recovery to them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of a number of different persons who have used the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and all have received great benefit from their use.
